

A comparative study of mental health Of urban and rural female students of higher secondary school

Parekh Kirtikaben Rajeshbhai
Ph.D. Research Scholars
Gujarat University, Ahmedabad

Abstract

This paper is based on the investigation conducted to study the effect of area and stream on mental health of female students of higher secondary school of valsad at district in Gujarat state. The sample consisted of 180 higher secondary school female students. The sample was selected in terms of Area (rural and urban) and stream (arts, science and commerce) in equal proportions, drawn randomly method. Mental health was measured by Mental Health Battery - Singh and Sengupta (2000). "t" test was used for analysis the data. There is significant difference between mental health of rural and urban female students of higher secondary school. There is significant difference between mental health of arts, science and commerce female students of higher secondary school.